#Selected :- first association rule (row number 0)

#support defined as support(A->C)
#Where A is antecedent and C is consequent
#A = hamburger meat
#C = Instant food products
#antecedent support = (Transactions containing (hamburger meat))/(Total ↳Transactions) = support(A) #consequent support = (Transactions containing (Instant food products))/(Total

#support = support(A->C) = (Transactions containing (A U C))/(Total ↳ Transactions)

#Confidence(A->C) = (Transactions containing both (A and C))/(Transactions ↳ containing A)
#Confidence refers to the likelihood that an item C is also bought if item A is ↳ bought.
#Therefore confidence = 0.091743 means that #the likelihood of buying Instant food products if hamburger meat is bought = 0.
↳ 091743

#Lift(A->C) = (Confidence (A->C))/(Support (C))
#Lift(A -> C) refers to the increase in the ratio of sale of C when A is sold
#So sale of Instant food products is increased by 11.421438 of ratio when ↳ hamburger meat is sold

#leverage(A->C)=support(A->C)-support(A)*support(C)
#Leverage computes the difference between the observed frequency of A and C
↳ appearing together and the frequency that would be expected if A and C were ↳ independent.
#An leverage value of 0 indicates independence.

#conviction(A->C) = (1-support(C))/(1-confidence(A->C))
#A high conviction value means that the consequent is highly depending on the ↳ antecedent.
#Similar to lift, if items are independent, the conviction is 1.
#The conviction value says that buying Instant food products is 1.092166
↳ depedns on buying hamburger meat
